1. The speaker gave clear instructions on how many lines to go down on and gave clear directions on what shapes to draw. He also helped tell which shapes to shade in and the areas to draw the shapes on. He also helped describe every step he took when drawing so it wouldn't confuse his group partners.
2. It was difficult to understand the sizes of the objects and whether the objects he told to draw were the same angle and orientation where Yuriy drew a upside down triangle due to the poor communication between the speakers and the listeners. One thing was also the lines where some lines were bigger than others due to the different types of paper we all had.
3. If we could repeat the activity we would focus more on the places and the orientation of the shapes and keep everything we did well the same. We will also focus on how to organize the shapes and maybe also try to have simpler shapes as well. We would also try to use the same paper where our lines were smaller and bigger than others due to the papers.
